DETAILS OF MEMBERS

LIZ COWLING - AGENCY DECISION MAKER

I am a qualified social worker who has experience of working in the public and private sectors. I started my social work career in residential work as a residential worker and eventually an Office in Charge of a children unit. After qualifying as a social worker I became a social worker in a child protection team, eventually moving on to the management of this team. I have worked with the National Fostering Agency since 2001 during this time I have undertaken a range of positions from SSW, Placement Manager, Registered Manager and Quality Assurance Director all of which has helped me to have a comprehensive understanding of fostering and the regulations and legislation that governs us.

MAIREAD FAGAN (CHAIR)

I have worked with children and young people for 10 years. I started my career as a Residential Worker in children's units in the Republic of Ireland before moving to Glasgow to train as a Social Worker. I have been a qualified Social Worker for 8 years and for the first 4/5 years worked with children and young people in an area team setting for the Local Authority. This involved working with children and young people who were looked after and accommodated, children and young people on the child protection register and children and young people who were looked after through Section 70 of the Children (Scotland) Act 1995. More recently, I have been working with children under the age of 5 years, in a multidisciplinary team comprised of Health, Social Work and Education staff.

Fostering Relations is the first fostering panel I have been involved with however, in my personal life, my parents have been foster carers for 25 years and I grew up within this household so am fully aware of the responsibilities and limitless support that foster carers are expected to provide for the children and young people in their care. I appreciate that this is a very difficult job and have great admiration for those who chose to become foster carers, offering safe and nurturing environments for the most vulnerable of children.

VICKY MARSHALL (CHAIR)

I have been working with young people, children and families for over 12 years. My current role as Community Learning and Development Worker (schools) involves supporting families who demonstrate often complex family and parenting needs. This position requires a sensitive approach and negotiating difficult and chaotic family relationships and behaviours. I am currently working on a project where I provide intensive one to one support to parents, foster/kinship carers to allow them to help their child achieve their social, educational, emotional and cognitive developmental milestones.

My other previous relevant experience includes the role of Chair, for over 10 years, on the Glasgow Children's Panel. My role there involved engaging with vulnerable children and their parents/carers, whilst making difficult decisions about the welfare of children at risk from harm. This experience allowed me to develop an understanding of the issues that face troubled and challenging families and the importance of a child's secure attachment. I also frequently had to liaise with foster carers and have gained an understanding of the legal context surrounding foster placements.

I have been a panel member with Fostering Relations for nearly four years and more recently took on the role of Vice Chair. I thoroughly enjoy being a panel member and feel privileged to be able to ensure the needs and welfare of children are met through foster carers providing a safe, nurturing and secure family placement. In addition, I want to ensure that every child has the opportunity to achieve their full potential within a nurturing fostering placement.

DAVID FORSYTH (CHAIR)

My name is David Forsyth and I am married with two grown up children. Perhaps unusually for a Panel Member, my background is not social work or education but before I retired early four years ago, I was a chemist and spent all of my working career within the petrochemical business based in Grangemouth. Hopefully this gave me lots of experience in working with teams, problem solving skills and understanding of what people need to do the best job they can - all matters relevant to Panel work I hope you agree. However I do have some other elements to my background that hopefully contribute towards good Panel membership. My two daughters were adopted by us as babies and so we have had experience of the care system through that. I was also a Children's Panel Member for 12 years and then for 8 years a member of the Children's Panel Advisory Committee. As chair of this latter group, our committee over-saw Children's Panel Members' performance and played a leading role in recruitment of new Panel members for Stirling, Falkirk and Clackmannanshire.

helping my sister with her small engineering firm and when I have spare time, like to cycle, hill walk and ski in the winter. I am also a very average bridge player. We also have a caravan in Pitlochry which allows me to enjoy my hobbies

MICHAHAILA DOWNIE (INDEPENDENT PANEL MEMBER)

I started my career working with children and young people in various residential settings. I began working as a support worker whilst studying for my psychology degree, working my way up to more senior levels. I supported some young people to move either into foster care and would work with them and their foster carers or if they were older into independent living.

I then worked as a service manager and then area manager with adults with disabilities, although my specialism is autism and learning disabilities.

I have also volunteered as a befriender to a couple of teenagers in foster care, both are now young women at university and whilst we have all moved to different parts of the country we still have a close bond and see each other frequently. By being a befriender I gained an insight into the foster care system that I never would have had solely through my work, as it was a very personal experience, seen through the eyes of the young people and their foster carers who I also have a close relationship with.

I hope my experience and knowledge gained will be able to help children, young people and foster carers as I understand how important foster placements are.

JILL GAWISH (INDEPENDENT PANEL MEMBER)

I have worked with children and young people in a variety of settings – as a play leader in an after-school club; A nursery nurse in a nursery; a project leader in a through care setting for 16-18 year olds; a volunteer guider for rainbows and brownies; a volunteer befriender for a young carer's project and a volunteer helper in a club for children with special needs.

I have been working for CHILDREN 1st since 2005. During this time I have set up a befriending project for vulnerable 7-16 year olds. I have also directly supported young people age 14-19 (who are not engaged in education, training or employment) and their families through individual work, group work, family support, family group conferences and matching with volunteer mentors. I currently work in the Argyle and Bute area as an advocate on behalf of children and young people who are on the child protection register and those in foster care. Many of the children I have worked with have been through the care system and as a result I have always had an interest in fostering.

LORNA KELLY (INDEPENDENT PANEL MEMBER)

I have a BA Degree in Social Work and work full time for a large Local Authority in a team that carries out parenting capacity assessments and makes recommendations about the permanent care needs of looked after children. I have also worked in the early intervention team where pre birth child protection assessments were the focus of work. Prior to this I gained several years experience in a Children & Families team providing services in an area of high deprivation and disadvantage.

My work involves managing and planning for looked after children and the complex issues that affect their lives. I have been involved in planning for children's futures and supporting them and their carers in managing transitions and the issues surrounding a different placement settings including permanency.

I have additional roles of an independent panel member for Fostering Relations as well as being a fostering assessor for two other organisations where I am involved in preparing prospective foster carers for the fostering role and presenting at panel.

I have a post graduate qualification from Strathclyde University 'Securing Children's Future's' which has a particular focus on using research to inform decision making and improve outcomes for looked after children. Fostering is an area that I have a keen interest in as I have seen the difference that good placements can make to children's daily life and longer-term outcomes.

As a panel member with Fostering Relations, I hope I can influence outcomes for looked after children by being involved in the decision making process of registration of foster carers.

CHERYL LEGGETT (INDEPENDENT PANEL MEMBER)

As a teenager, I was placed in voluntary foster care. It became apparent very quickly that I had a very positive experience compared to a lot of young people I met, having been placed with a family which perfectly met my needs. Even before leaving care, I began campaigning for my local authority, trying to raise awareness of the issues children and young people in foster care face, as well as encouraging more foster carers to come forward.

I left my foster family to study at university in Glasgow at the age of 18, and began working with the Fostering Network Scotland and the Scottish Through care and Aftercare Forum. I volunteered with these charities for over 11 years, and was involved in a number of campaigns including the annual Fostercare Fortnight drive to recruit more foster carers, and to change legislation, policy and practice in relation to young people leaving care.

I now work for the Scottish Throughcare and Aftercare

Forum dealing with membership for the charity. Through my work I am in contact with a number of professionals who work with young people who are preparing to leave, or have already left, care in Scotland.

With my own personal experience, and having met lots of young people through my voluntary work, I have a good understanding of the kinds of issues children and young people face when they are in care, their needs and wants, and how their experiences (even from a very young age) can impact them in later life. This has given me a drive and passion to make a difference for children and young people in and leaving care.

CAROLANN LOUDEN (INDEPENDENT PANEL MEMBER)

I have worked with children and young people for about 26 years, I spent many of these in Youth work working within community education and youth information & advice. I later moved to social work and firstly worked in a young person's homeless project, I then moved onto Residential childcare in local children's homes. I worked there for 13 years. I have just taken a career break recently. I have been a Foster Carer for 10 years and have had 2 boys for 9 ½ of those, I still have the youngest who is 17 and my oldest has moved on to through care. I have in recent months provided respite care to 2 girls and have only a few weeks ago taken another full-time placement.

I have been a Fostering panel member for another organisation for about 1 ½ years now, I really enjoy this work and look forward to continuing it with Fostering Relations.

I have a real commitment to Fostering work and would say that it has definitely changed my life and the lives of the young people I have looked after.

ERIC MCQUEEN (INDEPENDENT PANEL MEMBER)

I have been working in residential care for one of Scotland's oldest charities for 18 years looking after young people between the ages 12-18 years old who display a complex mix of social, emotional, educational and behavioural problems. Firstly as a sessional worker for 12 months and then as a full time Child & Youthcare worker for 6 years where I was keyworker to numerous young people looking after their welfare and working with their families before gaining promotion to my current role as Night Service Manager/ Duty Manager.

My current role involves line management of eight members of staff within two units on our campus and in one resource within the community where young people are supported and prepared for moving on into their own accommodation. Also oversee the running of the school and community based resources throughout the night while providing staff with advice and assistance where necessary. My position requires me to have good knowledge of the young people who reside in Kibble as I am the first port of call in the event of any situations that arise.

During my 18 years working with young people and families it has provided me with knowledge and understanding of the issues that many young people have experienced while living within the family home before being received into care. Therefore I believe I would be able to use my experience, knowledge and skills as a Fostering Relations panel member to help improve the lives of children and young people and hopefully provide carers with knowledge and advice that maybe helpful in their role.

CARRIE-ANNE REID (INDEPENDENT PANEL MEMBER)

I am a serving Police Officer with Police Scotland with over 9 years' service. As I am sure you are aware child protection is very much a consideration in everything we do already as police officers. I feel that with my training and experience I am able to consider the information provided in each case presented and make the right decision and that my experience, assessments and considerations compliments the mix of independent panel members that I have sat with. I am trained in Joint Investigative Interviewing and have carried out a number of these with children. From a personal perspective it gives me a great sense of pride to be part of the panel and to be able to contribute to a process that can change and improve the lives of children and foster carers alike.

RICHARD WAITE (INDEPENDENT PANEL MEMBER)

Richard started in this field 28 years ago when he founded a residential service for vulnerable children and adults using innovative approaches to outdoor education and groupwork. He moved to the mainstream as a child and family social worker, managed two local authority children's homes in Fife and then ran a Barnardo's child and parent support project for children with offending behaviour.

Richard now works as an independent social worker, trainer and consultant with a specialism in intensive work with parents during children's rehabilitation. Richard trains foster carers, social workers, early years, health and education professionals in approaches to caring for children affected by attachment deficits and trauma as well as other aspects of caring for children and young people. Richard's training for Fostering Relations has included child protection, safer caring and permanence. Richard is also a Safeguarder for Children's Hearings, principal Child Care Consultant for the Lilius Graham Trust (a residential parent and child assessment centre) and an associate trainer and consultant with Kate Cairns Associates. Richard is married with two grown-up children and lives near Stirling.

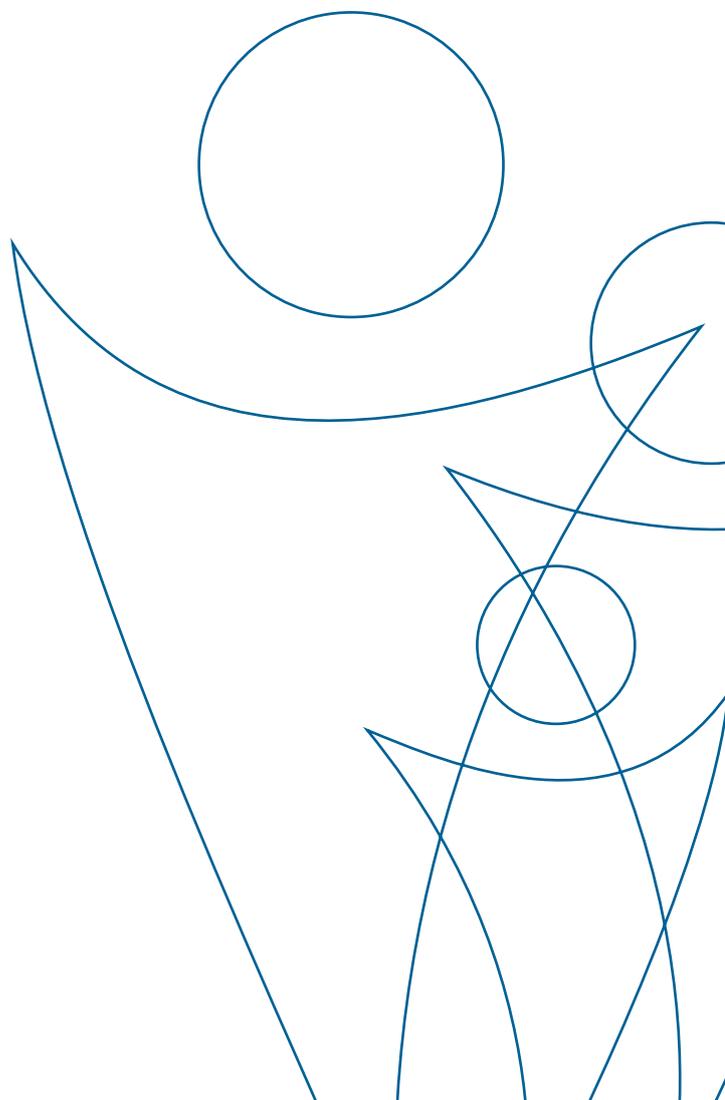

Qualifications:

- Certificate in Child Protection Studies, University of Dundee 2002
- Postgraduate Diploma in Social Work, University of Stirling 1997
- BA (Hons) Philosophy and Politics, University of Southampton 1985

HEATHER WATSON (INDEPENDENT PANEL MEMBER)

Having raised four children (two of whom were adopted) my connection with the fostering panel team and the carers is close to my heart.

My early career was in nursing where I specialised in communicable diseases. Many of our patients were children and young adults. Once my own children were set on their school career paths, I returned to education and retrained as a Secondary school teacher, a job which continues to give me joy, yet presents daily challenges.
